THE TEXAS INVESTIGATION. Testimony Before the Scuate Sub Committee Yesterday.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.] Washington, D. C., February 21. The Texas investigation was resumed this morning. R. P. Hackworth, juswas the observed of all observers. She seemed thoroughly to enjoy the play.

General Hill Screent-at-Arms of received two such notices, but destroyed the first. The one produced informed him that he had had plenty of time to get away, and added: "We know you have been stealing from the county for two years." The notice was signed, Secretary for Committee," and warned

Hackworth to leave.

Carl Schutze, aged forty-one, one o the memorialists to the Senate, testified that he published a German paper in Brenham; that he was a Republican, but his paper was independent or nonpartisan. Witness held the position of county attorney for four years. The last time witness ran for the office, it 1880, he was charged with making so Witness held the position o cial-equality speeches, and was defeated. Witness refused to take the stump in the last canvass, but in his paper he criticised the conduct of Democratic officials, and published threats made by Democrats against Republicans. He said Judge Kirk (Democrat) had threatened Hackworth Republicans. Witness declared that Republicans could not get justice in the courts there, and he ventilated that in his paper. The witness went that in his paper. The witness wo at considerable length to speak the courts, juries, etc., when Mr. Eustis

"As a matter of curiosity. would like to know what this has to do with this investigation?"
"Well, I don't know," remarked Mr.
Spooner. But it was decided to let the witness proceed.

The witness detailed at length a leged disturbances and crimes, sayir that in his paper he charged the Dem cratic party with the responsibility that that produced a bitter feeling against him. He said the Germ and incited attacks upon him. Witness was a candidate on the Republican ticket for county judge against Kirk (Democrat). The latter was elected, and THE PRESIDENT DISPOSED TO GIVE IT is counsel for the citizens in the pending investigation. The witness was permitted investigation. The witness was permitted to read a circular which he wrote and circulated in the name of the Republican Executive Committee just prior to the last election. The circular was very vituperative. Witness testified that the Democratic county officials had not made any efforts to apprehend the perpetrators of any of the outrages on the ballot-box. The "crime" witness committed (subsequent to the election) committed (subsequent to the election) was to denounce in his paper the raids on the ballot-boxes. He was permitted to read some of the editorials written by himself and published in his paper. He said he did not receive any written notice to leave, nor did anybody verbally order him to leave, but he made up his mind that it was not safe for him to remain there. Mr Bryan, a Democratic lawyer, offered to buy out witness's paper, saying that he wanted to get rid of it: witness did not know whether or not Bryan was a mem-ber of the Democratic Committee. Witness went to Galveston, but returned to Brenham to attend to some business, and left again, and as the train moved off several shots were fired at it and a stone was thrown into it.

On cross-examination the witness said that when he left Galveston, understanding that men were after him to murder him, he sold his paper (to his creditors) for $100 to enable him to get away. When witness left Galveston he did not see any pistols fired; 'twas dark; was sure the reports were not made by firecrackers; never heard who fired the pistols or threw the stone through the car-window. Witness began his published attacks on the Democrats in February and March, 1885; was not molested until December, 1886. Witness said he was the most influential Republican leader among the Ger-mans, and the Democrats wanted to get him away because of that. Witness didn't like to say anything against the national Administration, but the reason why the present condition of things didn't exist previously was because the marshals and officers were Republicans, and the irregulari ties were vigorously prosecuted. To day if a Republican was killed in Wash ington county the guilty men were not

Stephen A. Hackworth, another of the memorialists, was next examined. He testified that he is a native of Washington county and is a Republi-can. He testified that he, Schultze, and Moore were the three most promi nent and active Republicans in the county. The witness went over the ac-counts of the raiding of the ballot-boxes from hearsay; had heard of no attempt to arrest the perpetrators. He charged Judge Kirk with organizing the "kukluxes," as he called them. The testimony went over substantially the same ground that was covered by

[Published by request.] EULOGIZED IN COURT. Mr. James Pleasants's Tribute to the Memory of Mai. 1. H. Carrington. Memory of Maj. 1. H. Carrington.

Yesterday Mr. James Pleasants, who was appointed to present the resolutions adopted by the meeting of the Bar Association of this city regarding the late Isaae H. Carrington to the Chancery Court of the city, in delivering the said resolutions spoke to the Court as follows:
May it please your Honor, the distinction has been conferred upon me of presenting here the resolutions of the Richmond Bar Association on the occasion of the death of their late lament of president, Major Isaac H. Carrington, which I beg leave to read and to ask that by proper order they be spread upon the records of this court.

I trust that I may be pardoned for adding a few words of my own in memory of a friend of whem I grew fonder and fonder as I came to know him better, and of a neighbor (but alas! but for a brief while, for he came into his newly-purchased residence only to linger of whom I grow fonder and fonder as I came to know him better, and of a neighbor (but alas! but for a brief while, for he came into his newly-purchased residence only to linger and die there, and of the distinguished lawyer who filled so large a space for many years in the business of this court, and whose abilities were universally admired. As is well known to the bench and bar and the business community, he was an eminent practitioner; more, far more, than a fine lawyer, though possessing wide and extensive attainments. Besides his knowledge of principles and cases he knew how to apply that knowledge to the intricate and diversified affairs of mankind. His mind was not a lumber-room of legal rubbish, more curious than useful, but an armory, well filled and well arranged, from which he could draw forth at short notice the weapon he needed, kept all the while sharp and bright for ready use, and apity and ably wield it. In a word, he was a practical, business lawyer in a high sense, of diret-class availability, fine knowledge of human nature, safety in counsel, large experience, excellent powers of concentration, discrimination, and debate, and, above all, or rather beneath all, splendid common sense.

I am at a loss to say in what department of the profession he excelled, for he had no specialty, but shome in all. Before courtour juries, at nis prius or in the appellate court, in common law or in chancery, he was always able, it seemed to me that in office business he was equally at home, whether in the preparation of bill or answer, declaration or plea, deed or will, giving counsel, taking part in conference, or conducting negotiations.

Perhaps he was strongest when representing the side of the plaintiff; yet he was hardly less strong in defence than he was formidable in attack.

I know, sir, that I rate his talents highly, but I donot think that I rote of ar, when, in re-Governor of Tennessee, and from Governor Scales, of this State. He demanded Goodlake of Sheriff Wor-ley, of Buncombe. The latter was about to surrender Goodlake, but first telegraphed Judge Assay as to what the side of the plaintiff; yet he was hardly less strong in defence than he was formidable in attack.

I know, sir, that I rate his talents highly, but I so not think that I go too far, when, in respect of his professional career and its extraordinary achievements, Hiken him to anarmy in himself, well-disciplined, drilled, and organized; equipped with the materials and weapons of war, and composed of cavairy, infantry, and artillery, led by a skiffdl general, and ready either for the flery onset or the slow retreat. The quantity and quality of the work he accomplished bear me out in paying him this tribute; hard, tollsome, difficult, important, heavy work, involving the interests of a large body of clients whose confidence and appreciation he enjoyed. He was extraordinarily capable of doing work. Quick, yet accurate—energetic and indefatigable, but sure and safe—he combined strength with speed, and illustrated the truth of the formula which represents work as the result of power multiplied by velocity.

His style of speaking was earnest, plain, unaffected—in direct, terso, compact language—and rose to eloquence, in the best sense of that word, which defines it as the art of carrying one's point. He gave vigorous blows, striking from the shoulder, and at times without gloves, defivered with more of the fortiler in rethant the searciter in mode, but I never knew him to violate the courtesies of the bar or lose temper in the heat of detate—for he had a kind and friendly heart.

How often in that long, last weary and painful litness, protracted through five months of suffering, has my heart gone out in tender sympathy to him and his family. At last, after a trave and heroic struggle for life, he was forced to succumb to his disease; but he died a conqueror, and more than conqueror, russing in his Saviour's everlasting arms, and With faith that, panting for a happier seat, Counts death kind nature's signal of retreat. There is a certain silent and saverg paliery of the loved and foet—hung up with tender care on itse a place as Charleston was decided on as

NEW YORK, February 21.—General interest in the German elections and the near approach of heliday acted as dampers upon speculation to-day, and the market was the dullest of the season. There was absolutely no interest in anything but Reading, which contributed considerably over one third of the entire business. The depressed and gloomy tone of the advices from Europe, together with the dullness and apathy manifested by local operators and the renewal of gold shipments, gave a sagging tendency to prices, which became apparent whenever there was any noticeable activity whatever. The opening was genalic activity whatever.
